Description

A Brussels historical tapestry from the mid-16th century, depicting Julius Caesar crossing the Rubicon in defiance of the Roman senate and Pompey the Great. Caesar appears on horseback in the center, with soldiers following him from left and a woman looking up at him from right, within a sumptuous broad border woven with fruiting vines, female allegorical figures in stag and unicorn drawn carriages, exotic birds, masks and canopies, incorporating an inscribed band above, "Iacta Alea Est Transit Rubicone Mostra Secutus Coelica Sic Fervens Occupat Ariminum," a faded red shield for the Brussels town mark in the lower left corner, the weaver's mark on the lower right side selvage. Wool with silk inlay.

Hanging: The tapestry comes ready for hanging, with linen backing and a strip of hook and loop tape at the top end, which can be connected to the opposite side of the supplied hook and loop tape, which could be tacked to your wall. For those who prefer the use of a tapestry rod, we can add the appropriate size loops to accommodate your needs. We now have a large selection of antique tapestry rods available as well, which we can provide detail upon request.

Persian Gallery Notes

This tapestry has been the focus of much media attention, as it has come to light that this may be one of the lost treasures from the reign of King Henry VIII, and may have once hung at the Royal Palace at Hampton Court
